HybridTrading, LLC Reconciliation, including appropriate explanation for the Computation of Net Capital Under Rule 15c3-1 of the Securities and Exchange Commission June 30, 2005

Furniture and Equipment, net

Using the guidance of the AICPA, Statement of Position 98-1, Accounting for the Cost of Computer Software Developed or Obtained for Internal Use and EITF 00-02 Accounting for Web Site Development Costs, HybridTrading capitalized certain costs associated with HybridTrading's web site. The costs capitalized include compensation paid to employees and the cost of consultants used to develop the web site. The total capitalized cost for compensated employees and consultants was $19,896 and $104,200, respectively. The amount capitalized was reduced by $10,341 representing two months of depreciation. This adjustment affected total member equity by the net difference in capitalized compensation expense and additional depreciation expense.

Other Assets

Other assets increased by $6,000 for a deposit payment made to AT&T that was incorrectly coded as an expense. This entry affected total member equity by reducing telephone expense by the amount of the deposit.

Accounts Payable

Accounts payable increased by $92,437 for work performed by consultants on HybridTrading's web site. The total project amount payable was $104,200 but was reduced by $11,763 for payments made prior to June 30, 2005. This adjustment affected total member equity by recording the payment made to the consultants against the related account payable.

Other Accrued Expenses

Other accrued expense increased by $30,604 for accrued rent expense. HybridTrading received six months free rent for the Wheat Ridge office and three months free rent for the Portland office. FAS 13, Accounting for Leases, provides guidance for the proper accounting treatment of the free rent. Accordingly, the value of the free rent period for both offices were allocated on a straight-line basis over the initial term of the leases and the difference in rent expense was accrued as a liability. This adjustment affected total member equity by increasing rent expense.
